Ms.A.9.2
Vol.22
No.98

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

«Syracuse» The writer wishes to bring the anti-slavery cause before the German population of the country. Though supporting his family by teaching music, the writer preaches every sabbath in a hired hall at a salary of about $75 a year. Asks the abolitionists to help him with $300 to erect a meeting-house. In return the writer would be willing "to translate or to write a year for the Abolition society gratis." Or the society might pay him for such work and he might try to build a meeting-house on that basis.
A.L.S. 4 p. 9 3/4 x 7 7/8 in.

Postscript by Samuel J. [redacted] who has not given "friend Saul" much encouragement, [redacted] recommends him as "a good, honest, earnest soul."

To «Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman»

«3 Holler Place, Fulham Road, Brompton, London» The writer comments on conditions in France. The bourgeoisie has a horror of what has happened, but only because its own liberty has been taken away. It does not yet understand equality and fraternity. It is only by the people and the army that the detestable power of the (2nd?) Bonaparte can be overturned, and these have not yet had their eyes opened. The writer is touched by the sympathy of the addressee's family, and thanks especially her charming daughter. The writer's friend, Mme. D'Agout, in a letter, inquired if the addressee's daughter would willingly marry a Fre[redacted]an. «3 Holler Place, Fulham Road, Brompton» This letter is concerned with the addressee's attitude toward Mme D'Agout. Apparently the writer had brought the addressee, who wished to know women interested in the anti-slavery cause, into some connection with Mme D'Agout, "a distinguished writer, a historian." It appears, however, that the addressee, because of moral scruples, did not wish to cooperate with Mme D'Agout. The writer thinks it wrong of the addressee to take a censorious view of this lady, who preferred to leave her husband rather than deceive him. This may be a crime in the eyes of the world, which usually ac[redacted]fferently, but that it should

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

«North Weymoutn, Mass.» The writer has been advised to subscribe to the Liberator. Says that "as it respects slavery I like it but there is not but a very little put in." The paper when it was first published, was very good, "but now it has become a poor filthy paper, it is mostly fitted up with pieces about Peace, Nonresistance, the Sabbath, Church, and Ministry, and as it goes on the poor slave will never be liberated." Warns of divine judgment and quotes a poem: "Vain man thy fond perquisites forbear." Calls Amos Bronson Alcott "a companion of the devil" and "a blasphemer."

To "Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman and Abolitionists of Boston friends of Mr. John A. Collins"

"Anti-Slavery Office (Boston)." The writer, coming from Skaneateles Community (N.Y.), is calling in the interest of his friend John A. Collins, though "without his knowledge or consent." Suggests that Collins may again be had for service in the anti-slavery cause. He would now no longer share this interest with the "community cause" since he has abandoned the latter. Collins is out of money, business, credit, and health.
